

Categories: Book reviews,

Categories: ,,

With the End in Mind

Kathryn Mannix. 2017. William Collins. 323p

Mannix is a palliative care doctor in the UK and her book relates graphic, touching and 'ordinary' stories of her experience with various patients at the end of their lives, with sensitive and perceptive explanations that do not spare any physical and emotional details.

Her style is humane and without sensationalization, her philosophy to enable "people to be architects of their own solution is key to respecting their dignity. They are only in a new phase of life; they have not abdicated personhood."

